

The Reverend Howard Finster was a folk artist from Summerville, Georgia who claimed to be inspired by God to spread the gospel through the environment of Paradise Garden and over 46,000 pieces of art. The youngest of 13 children, Finster began preaching as a teenager in rural Alabama – but it was not until 1976, at the age of 60, that he saw a dab of paint on his finger become a face which commanded him to “make sacred art.” All of his works were part of his crusade to save the world before it was too late. He appeared with Johnny Carson and his artwork decorates album covers for groups such as R.E.M. and the Talking Heads.
